

Join your friends from the Pittsburgh Region CLC for yet another exiting event - a group guided tour of Frank Lloyd Wright's Kentuck Knob in the Laurel Highlands - just 7 miles down the road from the famous Fallingwater in Ohiopyle, PA. Built in 1956 for I.N. and Bernadine Hagan, Kentuck Knob is another profound and valid Wrightian statement of the life of man in nature. The house exhibits the extraordinary warmth, serenity and functionality of a home Wright designed for everyday living. Enhanced by a breathtaking vista, its wooded landscape is the setting for the notable collection of artifacts and post-WW II sculpture.
